case study

Client: health system

Purpose: wellness challenge educational piece

A large health system sponsored a January wellness challenge at each of its clinic locations and asked participants to track a daily healthy action along with the number of minutes they moved. When participants signed up, they received the #1301 Healthy Eating calendar. In a post-challenge survey, a majority of participants noted that the calendar was a good motivational tool and that they planned to use it for the remainder of the year for cooking inspiration and to note their progress over time.
